If you need find specific orientation images, vertical or horizontal do it as follow:

Let's say that you need find vertical images of animals, then introduce your search criteria in the quick search box (up on the right in all Travel Reportages pages) in this way, vertical +animals if horizontal is needed then: horizontal +animals remember put the + symbol in front the second search criteria without spaces. you can do the same by using th Advanced

Search feature, in this case you don't need use the + symbol just write the searching words as follow: horizontal animals (orientation – space – search criteria) just take care that the parameter AND is selected (it's as default), read the Quick Search Tips available in this FAQs in order to learn more about search tips.

Quick Search Tips

The scope of your search results will be determined by your selection of keywords.

Quick Search:

By default the QUICK SEARCH BOX uses "Match at least one keyword" for the search function. If you input Mekong river into the quick search field, then the search function will return results for any media that contain either Mekong OR river The system supports the "AND" and "NOT" operands in the quick search function by the use of the plus sign (+) and minus sign (-) respectively in front of the keywords.

If you input Mekong +river into the search field, the system will only return results for any media that contain both keywords Mekong AND river in its properties.

If you input Mekong –river into the search field, the system will return results for any media that contain the keyword Mekong , but this media can't contain the keyword river in its properties.

Note: There must not any spaces between the second keyword and the input operands (+), (-)

Advanced Search:

The Advanced Search function does not use the same algorithms as above. It offers options allowing you to choose which operand you want to use for your searches. In order to perform the same search that the one described above do it as follow: Mekong river (without any operand and just letting a space between words criteria) just be carefull that the parameter AND is selected (it's as default)

You can reach the Advanced Search feature at the link under the QUICK SEARCH BOX
